INTRODUCTION

Purpose and Scope of the Catalogue

This second and final volume identifies and cites research and development materials produced principally through programs of the former Bureau for Technical Assistance of the Agency for International Development (A.I.D.). All research and development fields of concern to this Bureau are represented in this volume, extending coverage beyond food production and nutrition—the focus of Volume One—to education and human resources, health, development assistance, economics, and selected areas in both the physical and social sciences.

As in the earlier volume, titles cited here represent findings and results produced in the search for expanded knowledge and new approaches to developmental problems. They have been issued between 1962 and 1977. The work again excludes programmatic documentation used by A.I.D. to carry out project development, obligation of funds, and management operations.

A major portion of materials cited has been produced and issued by contractors or grantees associated with the former Bureau for Technical Assistance. However, this volume gives greater attention to research and development materials produced and issued under programs supported by other central Bureaus located in Washington, D.C. and by A.I.D. field missions.

Arrangement of the Catalogue

Section I provides for approach by subject. Major subjects and their subdivisions are outlined in the Table of Contents at the front. Within these broad topics, citations are arranged under descriptors. Titles here contained in Class A: Food production and Nutrition, supplement materials in these areas cited in Volume I, as issued December, 1976.

Section II provides for approach by authors, personal and corporate, combined in one alphabet.

Section III provides for institutional approach by contracts, grants, and issuing offices.

Section IV contains a thesaurus of descriptors used in Section I, and a directory of addresses of contractors, grantees, and other issuing units.

How to Obtain Materials Cited in the Catalogue

Users may apply for copies directly to contractors and grantees responsible for the original production of materials. Addresses for all issuing units are given in full in Section IV, Table 3. In cases where journal articles are involved, reprints may also be requested from journal publishers. In the Washington, D.C. area, original materials may be consulted in the Development Information Center, DS/DIU/DI.

Updating of this Catalogue and Abstract Services

Research materials produced under A.I.D. sponsorship have been widely reported out on a current basis since July, 1973 in A.I.D. Research and Development Abstracts. This quarterly abstract journal will continue to serve as an updating service; and additional types of announcement services will also become available during 1978.

Developing country agencies and organizations are invited to inquire about subscriptions to the abstract quarterly and other services offered at the address below:

SECTION I
SUBJECT INDEX

The subject classification is described fully in the Table of Contents. The A Class used for food and nutrition essentially is that developed and used in the AGRIS system of FAO.

Individual entries given in Section I comprise the following elements:

- Listing of all authors
- Full titles
- Year(s) of issue
- Number of pages
- Issuing institutions, together with the contract grant symbol
- Notes
- Documentation identification symbol or number

The following kinds of notes are used as required in these citations:

- Titles of books, journals, series, or proceedings in which articles originally appeared.
- Names of conferences, workshops, or symposia at which papers were originally presented.
- Theses and dissertations are noted along with names of the institutions at which study and research took place.
- Translations in other languages available, along with document identification numbers for these translations when they are available separately.
- Earlier editions or versions of the work or other works closely related.
- The nature of the treatment given in reports appearing in series, i.e., activity summary, research summary, etc.
